Reindeer

On the afternoon of Saturday 20th January 1901, Mr. and Mrs. George C. and Miss Anna C. were at their home in the village of Grafton, Ontario, Canada. They had just returned from a walk in the woods when they heard a noise coming from the direction of a nearby stream. As they approached the sound, they saw a large black bear standing on the bank of the stream. The bear was looking towards them and appeared to be growling. Mr. C. reached into his pocket and took out a shotgun. He fired a single shot at the bear, hitting it in the shoulder. The bear turned and ran away into the woods. Mr. C. followed the bear through the woods, eventually catching up to it near a small clearing. He fired another shot, hitting the bear in the side. The bear fell to the ground, dead. Mr. C. approached the bear and checked for signs of life. There were none. He then turned and walked back towards his home, carrying the bear's body with him. When he arrived home, he found his wife and daughter waiting for him. They were both shocked and distressed by what had happened. Mr. C. explained what had occurred and showed them the bear's body. They were all very upset and tearful. The bear was later identified as a black bear, approximately 3 years old, weighing about 150 pounds. It was found to have been shot in the shoulder and side, which caused it to fall to the ground. The bear was found to be in good condition, with no visible injuries other than those caused by the bullet. The bear was later buried in a nearby cemetery.

But these cases confirm, also, what I have said previously about the need to move the model into a more general form. In fact, this is the direction we are taking.

the next day he was again at work on his garden. — He had a very large garden, and he worked hard at it. — He had a small house near his garden, and he lived there. — He had a wife and two children. — His wife was a good woman, and she helped him in his garden. — They had a small garden, and they grew vegetables and flowers. — They also had some fruit trees, such as apples and pears. — They lived a simple life, and they were happy. — They had a small garden, and they grew vegetables and flowers. — They also had some fruit trees, such as apples and pears. — They lived a simple life, and they were happy.

Dear Mr. Lam
Frankfort
N.Y.
July 16
My dear wife!
I am writing you from Frankfort, N.Y., where I have been for the past week. The weather has been very hot and humid, but the air is fresh and invigorating. I have been walking in the woods and exploring the surrounding area. The Adirondack mountains are visible in the distance, and the Adirondack River flows nearby. I have been reading a book by Henry David Thoreau called "Walden". It is a philosophical work about living a simple life in nature. I find it inspiring and thought-provoking. I will send you a copy when I return home. I hope you are well and that you are looking forward to our vacation. I will write again soon. Love, [Signature]
